The firm relocates to The Gherkin, in the heart of the City

London, January 26, 2026 - International law firm Gianni & Origoni announces the relocation of its London office to the 30th floor of The Gherkin, located at 30 St Mary Axe. The new offices, operational as of 1 January 2026, offer modern and sustainable spaces designed to support the growth of the London office and strengthen relationships with international clients and partners.

“This move represents a milestone in our growth strategy,” said Emanuele Bosia, London-based Foreign Partner and M&A expert. “Our new and iconic location in the heart of the City will enhance our synergies with the global market and improve the experience for clients, colleagues and visitors alike.”

Gianni & Origoni has been operating in London since 1997, when the office was established as part of the firm’s international expansion following its founding in 1988. The firm chose to open offices in key European financial centres, including London.

Today, the London office employs 19 people, including 15 lawyers, among them Partners Emanuele Bosia, Marco Zaccagnini, Mattia Casarosa, and Norman Pepe. Norman recently joined the firm together with his team, significantly strengthening the Banking & Finance practice in London, particularly in structured finance.

“Our London office enables us to support clients in global transactions, with a focus on corporate law, M&A, banking & finance, and other practice areas in line with the firm’s full-service offering,” commented Marco Zaccagnini, London-based Foreign Partner and Capital Markets expert. “The move to the new office underlines our commitment to Italian and international clients operating or investing in the UK and global markets.”

Designed by Foster + Partners, the Gherkin is London’s first ecological tall building and remains an exemplar of sustainability, wellbeing, and innovation. Gianni & Origoni’s new office is fully operational, with all logistical details available at www.gop.it.
